

Translations:Biodiesel/120/en

- Pour the glycerin into the pressure cooker and heat it up to at least 100 degrees. Glycerol has a boiling temperature of 290°C, there is no need to precisely control the temperature.
- Cool the copper coil down by placing it in a tub of water or with a wet cloth to accelerate the condensation of methanol.
- Collect the condensed methanol in a glass jar.