

Translations: Biodigesteur domestique/50/en

---

To prevent the digester from losing energy, it is important to provide a proper isolation, so that only few heat has to be provided. In addition, a good isolation limits temperature variations, to which bacteria are very sensitive. Many different ways exist for isolation. We chose to use corkboards, but it is also possible to use straw for example, which is very cheap and provides good isolation.