

Translations:Chaufferette/68/en

At the beginning, there's an excess of water, so it's this water that evaporates. But as soon as there is almost no water left, we start to "dehydrate" our good old molecule, "hence the appearance at the end of crystals", then, progressively "a solid film".