

Translations:Filtre à eau céramique/51/en

Flow control is an important step in quality assurance which indicates the rate at which water flows through the filter. Once the clay formula and production process has been established, the flow test is performed on EACH filter produced to ensure its viability.