

Translations:Hydroponie/31/en

---

- Transplant the shoots at the end of the day.
- Transplant the shoots when they have at least 5 leaves. Then you have to water.
- Cuttings: for mint and sweet potatoes, for example, cut one or more branches. Remove the leaves on about 2/3 of the branch. Bury this cleared area under the clay balls. Then you have to water.
- Harvest in the morning, shortly after sunrise. Choose the oldest, most damaged leaves or leaves that develop in parallel with auxiliary shoots.