

Translations:Le biofiltre/33/en

---

The liquid coming out of the filter is rich in elements easily digestible by plants and beneficial microorganisms. The interest of such a work of deconstruction in the organic filter avoids that the deconstruction take place in the roots of the plants and then creates rotten bits or deficiency. In this organic filter, this work is happening in aerobic, which means in oxygenated environment.