

Translations:Le biofiltre/39/en

The earthworm composting can be performed to all size-cultures, from a community scale, to spread the large-scale cultures, or smaller one at home to produce for example, fertilizer for personal culture of the soil or hydroponics. This system is really interesting for isolated cultures with an agricultural activity, or even in urban areas in hydroponics (for example in roofing) because it enables to create a virtuous alimentation cycle by combining organic waste recycling and fertilizer production for plants.