

Translations:Shampoing sec/2/en

---

Dry shampoo was relatively unknown before big cosmetic brands like Garnier and others decided to make it a major asset in their cosmetic sales. In fact, that's how I discovered its existence! The promise of being able to quickly and discreetly clean your hair without water at any time, in just a few minutes, seems incredible but true, and can be done without spending a penny more than our kitchen shopping! On average, a bottle of industrial dry shampoo costs around 5€, but if you look at the ingredients you soon realise that you're buying gas, a bit of perfume and starch. Starch!!