

Translations:Shampooing sec/3/en

So let's take a look at our kitchen cupboards: starch is found in flour (any kind of flour) as well as maïzena (corn flour) or potato starch (very rich in starch, potato flour). If you look back at our recipes and tips for cleaning greasy stains, you'll find a wider range of powders that can be used in dry shampoo: clays, diatomaceous earth, chalk, talcum powder, blanc de Meudon, etc. You can even use very finely powdered bicarbonate for food or cosmetics (but NOT for household use), but this can be a little more irritating to the scalp. And all these powders are 100% natural, normally non-allergenic and 100% biodegradable.