Waste management, particularly in urban areas, is considered as one of the most important environmental issues for the coming years. The recycling of organic waste (bio-waste) is still quite limited although they represent more than a third of our garbage. Today, most of this organic waste, although recoverable, is buried or incinerated, bringing major environmental problems (pollution of the soil, air and groundwater, demand for increasingly large storage areas, etc.). The strong growth of urban populations makes it a major challenge for municipalities and more and more solutions are being tested.
